David Reyne has graced Australian television screens for three decades, constantly building on an impressive body of work as a host, reporter, actor, writer, producer and musician.

David was the co-host of '9am with David & Kim' on Network Ten, where he impressed all with his entertaining and thought provoking interviewing style. The programme was much admired as an informative and worthwhile morning show alternative.

Prior to '9am with David and Kim', David travelled the world for 14 years as 'Getaway's' longest serving presenter earning himself a reputation as Australia's most incisive travel reporter. During his time at 'Getaway' he wrote a regular column, 'Reyne's World', which appeared in The Melbourne Herald Sun. He is currently a regular contributor to the Traveller section of The Age newspaper.

He is much sought after as a celebrity speaker and master of ceremonies.

As an actor, David has appeared in movies, on stage and in television. His credits include 'The Man From Snowy River', 'The Flying Doctors' and 'Sweet and Sour' (for which he won the Logie for Best New Talent in 1985).

He was a former host of the 'Midday Show' with Tracy Grimshaw and has appeared as a presenter at the AFI Awards, The Logies and The People's Choice Awards.

David is a husband of marathon duration, a muddled parent, a golfer of astonishing inability, a fair-weather surfer, a raconteur of delight and surprise and a feverish explorer of whatever may take him beyond the next rise and around the next swamp.
